

Little Dust Ball's first snake

It was another warm, slow day on the old Cat & Cactus farm. Dust Ball was following Verne around as he watered the cacti.

Suddenly the year old Siamese saw something she'd never seen before. Verne called it a snake. Dust Ball was very careful of it and swiped her paw at the tail. When the snake tail moved she jumped back quickly!

She brushed her body across Verne's legs the way she did 10 times a day. Verne said "What a good girl!" and gently pulled her tail.

Soon enough the little gopher snake slipped out of sight.

Little Dust Ball went back to resting. She'd have an exciting story to tell the old Rust Bucket later at dinner time. "Had Rusty ever seen a snake" she wondered?
